

HEATHER GREEN
Associate Editor

Heather Green is the Internet editor for BusinessWeek's Information Technology section. She is currently responsible for coverage of digital media and wireless. She writes and edits stories on online publishing and entertainment, wireless data services, and innovative Web use within companies.

Ms. Green started at BusinessWeek in 1997, breaking ground on a series of Internet trends in advertising, e-commerce, privacy, and digital media. As an editor, Ms. Green has handled BusinessWeek's annual IT 100 list and edited covers on Web Smart corporations, digital medicine, and Internet productivity.

Prior to joining BusinessWeek, Ms. Green worked for three years at Bloomberg News, building from scratch the wire service's Internet beat. She was also an editorial assistant at the International Herald Tribune in Paris.

Ms. Green holds a graduate degree in political science and economics from the Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Paris and an undergraduate degree in comparative literature from the University of Virginia. She has won awards including the New York Press Club Crystal Gavel Award and the Front Page Award from the Newswomen's Club of New York.